WHAT HIS SHORT STAY IN LOUISIANA

DID FOR HIM.

Bill Zach Thought Pete Raines Was Incurable and Sent Him Away-Plunk Took Ris Life In His Hand, So He Thought, but Peto Came Back Completely Changed.

"I never knew any one but Pete Raines that had ever been to Louisiana," rid Slote Bendell of Gibson county, Tenn., "and I never heard him say a word against it, but from the way he acted when he came back to Tennessee from there I can't say that I gathered the idea that Louisiana held out many inducements for folks to go there and stay-that is, if the district Peto Raines went to was any fair sample of the vay things strike visitors in Louisiana. That district was Tangipahoa parish. saw Pete when he started for Tangipahoa parish, and I saw him just after he got back. That's why I can't get up and shout much when I hear folks brag about Louisiana, although Poto never said a word. There was good reason for thai, though

"Now, I s'pose that when I rise to wmark that west Tennossee is thog irden pot of all oreation some folks'll snicker and maybe sport. But they wouldn't if they knew how 'shamed they'd be if they could ever strike luck enough to be turned loose in Gibson county once, especially around where Humboldt is. William Zachariah Raines lives there. "One day, two years or so ago, Bill Zach said to Plank—Plunk was a nigger that worked for Bill Zuch, and a good one he was, too-'Plunk,' said Bill Zach, 'there ain't no kind o' use, we get to do something with Pete.

The better I treat him the worse he acts. He won't plow, and he won't do nothing that ain't cussedness. Kicked the bay more in the belly this morning, and sho won't be worth a picayune for a week. Chased the old woman from the cowyard clear to the house and into the house and followed her half way up the kitchen stairs. There ain't any hving with Peto any longer. Something's got to be done. Guess I'll send him 'long with you down into Louisiana, '

" 'Golly!' said Plunk. 'Who'll fough me back ag'in den? Peto he kill me sure! Dead nigger can't walk back from

'Weosyannah!' 🍃 "But Bill Zach had made up his mind, and the mule had to go with Plunk, dead nigger or no dead nigger. "Guess I forgot to say before that Pete Raines was a mule, and a slick one ho was too! Lill Zach raised him. IIa was 8 years old when all this happened. and I'll het his ears were a foot and a half long. His tail wasn't as long as his ears, but it had a tuit on it like a can-ICE CREAM SODA AND ICE CREAM his hide glistened like a darky's face in a green cornfield. But Pete wasn't reliable. He had a way of kicking and buing and fighting on the spur of the Liement and without any provocation that made him practically the boss of things around Bill Zach's place, and he knew it. Bill Zuch bought a place a couple of years ago down in Tangipahoa parish, La., to which he intended to send Plank down to work, and so he thought he'd get rid of Pete in a merciful sort of way by sending him down there, too, although it might be that he'd get rid of Plunk at the same time. "They shapped Pete on the railroad, and be went away tickled to death. He had it in his mind that he was going into a wider field to spread his cassedness in, and he fairly yelled with delight in his car when the train pulled out. It is 180 miles from Humboldt to Tangipahoa parish by rail. When they unloaded Pere Cown there, he came out smiling. He thought he had it in for that country and would make his mark. But he hadn't looked around much before dejection seemed to seize him. Plunk had never seen Pete that way, and he got seared. Plunk was more uneasy still when Poto went listlessly to the plow and dragged it all day without once lifting his cars or his heels.

" 'I bet dis whole plantation 'gin a alligator what ain't Lotched yit, said Plunk, 'dat dey's a yarthquake wuckin in dat mooi, an dat when it bust sit'll h'ist dis nigger clean to de udder side ob Jurdan!

"But it wasn't so. The mule get down in the dumps werse and werse every day, and after Pete had been in Louisiana a week Plunk went to the field after him one day, and there was no mule to be seen. Plunk hunted all over that country for three days, but couldn't find any trace of Pete. Then Plunk sent word to Bill Zach that the mule had gone off somewhere and died. And Bill Zach was glud. About three weeks after that Bill Zach was startled out of his alcep at half past 8 in the morning by a noise that awakened memories. He listened. The noise broke out again. It rattled the windows; it echoed among the hills; it wailed; it yooped; it heehawed. "'Pete, by the living jumper!' yelled Bill Zach, jumping out of bed and hurrying to the door. A mule was leaning wearily against the front fence. He was thin and scraggy, his eyes were hollow and his cars half way to his knees, like a yaller hound's. When this mule saw Bill Zach at the door, he lifted up his voice again and actually wept. It was Pete, back from Louisiana. It is 500 miles from Tangipahoa parish to Humboldt by road, and so you may know what Pete must have thought of Louisiand to take his overburdened heart with | Wholesale and Retail Dealer in him, so to speak, and pull out for Tennessee, on the hoof. Pete was as slick as ever he was in a few days and started in to be pretty near as sessy and cassed as ever, but Bill Zach said one day to his wife when Pere was by:

"'I'm going to send Pete back to Tangipahou parish again, Susan.' "Pete dropped his ears and walked way, and ever since then he has been the best mule in the whole of Gibson ounty, and Bill Zach wouldn't take 31,000 for him."-New York Sun,

A PERSONAL CAMPAIGN.

The goldbugs of Nevada have commenced a personal campaign. This indicates that they have no principles which they expect the people to endorse. Many of them who have feasted and fattened on railroad spoils are trying to delude the unsophisticated with the false assection that the Silver DISHONESTY AMONG CLERKS party of Nevada is the creature of the Central Pacific Company. Got His Diamond Back.

A nice looking young fellow in evening dress called on a certain physician a night or two ago with a peculiar wound in his face. The physician heard his explanation and then extracted a large diamond from under the ragged skin. This young man was engaged to a society girl. He was very much in love with her. One night, filled with moonlight and poetry, he slipped a diamond ring on her finger. The lady a few days after gave it to another, to whom she was engaged. The original donor of the ring saw it on his rival's finger. He felt badly. He said so. The fortunate young man resented this and proceeded to show it by knocking the original owner down. The stone staid with him. He is having it set for another girl.—Washington Capital.

The White Tailed Gun. The white tailed gnu is dead. He had been ailing for the past two months. Recently he bit at the tip of his tail, which was brushing-flies from his back, and before he realized what he was doing swallowed a piece of the thouglike appendage. Since then he rapidly declined. It was said that the animal showed signs of insanity. - Philadelphia

A Horrible Suspicion.

Lysander Dickerson of Sterling, Ills., thus writes to the Chicago Journal: "In a recent issue of your paper I find an item describing at some length the moving of the old Liberty bell into its new quarters in Independence hall at Philadolphia, and a recital of the safe-guards with which the historic relic is now surrounded. In this item the bell itself is described with more or less minuteness. The article recalls to my mind the fact that some 45 years or so ago, in company with S. S. Dana of Wilkesbarre, Pa., I visited Independence hall inspection of this historic relie. At this time there was a place a foot or races must be paid to the Secretary more deep chipped out at one of the prior to weighing the jockeys out. onter edges. When it was exhibited at the fair, there were no evidences of vandahsm. This convinces me of the truth of the story, which is generally unbelieved, to the effect that years ago the old bell was sold to an enterprising Yard and by him worked up into mikets I claim to have one of them.
